From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

This article contains information about a scheduled or expected future product. It may contain preliminary information that does not reflect the final version of the product.

PlayStation Home (trademarked as "Home™") is a community-based service for the PlayStation Network which has been in development since early 2005. Home allows users to create an avatar for their PlayStation 3 console. This avatar will get their own apartment, which can be adorned by items players can receive in several achievements. In the future the service will also expand, allowing players to have more sorts of clothing, as well as hold pets. itation needed When it is available, Home will be launched via its own category in the XMB between the "Game" and "Network" category. This service will be free of charge. Sony is aiming for the initial download to be under 500MB. Home was announced at the Game Developers Conference on March 7, 2007^[1] with a scheduled global public release for Fall 2007 (sometime during September or October).^[2] During the TGS 2007, Home was announced to be delayed until Spring 2008, though home will still have an earlier "open beta" release^[1].^[3]

Motorola Q Wiki

Introduction

The Motorola Q is a Windows-based mobile phone and e-mail device that fits in your pocket. Fully tricked-out, it can duplicate many of the functions of a computer, including MS document processing, handling business and personal e-mail, accessing the Internet, playing music and more.

Because the possible applications for the Q will always expand, the "ideal" user guide would also be able to grow and change. This wiki is an attempt to do that. It's a place to capture and share the knowledge of the greater community of Q users. If, for example, you have added a new application to your Q, you could post instructions on how you did it here, for the benefit of all Q users.

This site has been established by Motorola for the use of Q users. It has been seeded with the contents of the in-box user guide. Additional content will be provided by Q users as they explore the Q's capabilities.

En av våra cyklar har letat sig till Chicago. Så här sätter Sophie:
"I ride my Okee Bike daily in Illinois (even through the snow when it's not too deep) and being shown off every month at Critical Mass.
It made all of my bike-fan friends jealous."

Allan Heinberg on "What I Am"

Original Airtdate: 10-12-06 | October 13, 2006 in Allan Heinberg | Permalink | Comments (1318)

So, here's the thing: you people terrify me. You're passionate, you're insightful, you're bravely outspoken. You know Grey's Anatomy and its characters better than anyone, except maybe Shonda Rhimes. And I don't know if you realize this, but the way you write about the show, debate it, love and/or hate it carries an enormous amount of weight in the Writers Room.

All of which makes the experience of blogging here for the first time absolutely terrifying.

Father knows best

"You know, this is one of the great ones."

That's what Charles Lindbergh once said to Joe Sutter. He about the 747. He might just as well have said it about Su Tammelin, who spearheaded the design and construction of the legendary airplane.

I can tell you how much that means to me personally, that people from all over the globe take the time to check out this page regularly. It shows what a continued commitment and interest our visitors have in the Boeing Company and in the dynamic world of commercial aviation. Your comments are fascinating, intelligent, often thought-provoking, and sometimes just plain bizarre. I can't answer them all, but I can assure you I do read them all.

This blog has been a real surprise to me over these past couple of years. It's been used as source material (!) in news articles, and has been cited in web articles about corporate blogging. It's all been somewhat surreal, but to see that something we started in a basement has started spreading to a wider audience the world over about the important issues in commercial aviation and Boeing's vision of the future of flight.
